2. Interested institution (legal person):

Hannover Medical School (MHH)

Hannover Medical School (Medizinische Hochschule Hannover), founded in 1965, is one of the world's leading university medical centres. Building on broad expertise in medicine and life sciences, with particular knowhow in our three main research areas (immunology and infectious diseases; transplantation and regeneration; biomedical technology and implants), MHH scientists study human diseases and develop innovative strategies for diagnosis, prevention and therapy. MHH holds world-class clinical excellence, leading cutting-edge developments in the fields of cochlear implants, lung transplantation and novel treatment regimens for viral hepatitis. MHH offers an inspiring research environment and a multiplicity of opportunities for career development, e.g. through the academy of the Translational Research Alliance in Lower Saxony.

3. Institute/Department:
